AIA Launches Accelerator Programme to Support Innovation

HONG KONG, 25 November 2014 – AIA Group Limited (“AIA” or the “Company”) today announced the launch of a 12-week accelerator programme to support innovative business and entrepreneurs on their paths to delivering break-through innovations and technologies.

The initiative is a collaborative effort between AIA and Nest, a Hong-Kong based investment incubator led by angel investor Simon Squibb, aiming to create opportunities for innovators across the region to shape the future of insurance and healthcare industries.

Start-ups with innovative ideas and technology about healthcare are invited to apply for the programme and take advantage of the vast access to resources and mentoring that partnership has created. Following the application review process, eight start-up companies will be offered a place on the accelerator programme.

The eight companies chosen will be guided through business growth and development with the help of business mentoring from AIA and Nest senior management, access to the AIA and Nest network of supporters and partners and potential equity investments. Each company accepted into the AIA Accelerator programme will refine their business model, culminating in an AIA Demo Day and Public Investor Demo Day in Hong Kong in June 2015.

Steve Monaghan, Head of AIA Edge, said, “As the leading pan-Asian life insurance group, AIA has a long and impressive record of business innovation spanning over 90 years in Asia Pacific. AIA meets the ever-changing and increasing financial and protection needs of the people across the region by offering a wide range of products and services. We will continue to innovate across multiple disciplines to drive sustainable growth and to provide our customers with the right solutions. The AIA Accelerator programme reflects our commitment to promote innovation not only within AIA but in support of the wider insurance sector around the Asia-Pacific region.”

Simon Squibb, CEO of Nest, said “Entrepreneurs often try to develop solutions to problems that are most relevant to their daily lives. Since healthcare and lifestyle are big on the priority list for people in Asia, we believe start-ups in this region are particularly well-placed to disrupt the future of industries like healthcare and insurance. This new partnership between Nest and AIA marks a powerful and unique opportunity for entrepreneurs in the region to get support from market leaders in Asia.”

Applications are available at www.aia-accelerator.com and will be open until 31 January 2015. The programme will begin in 2 March 2015 with the Demo Days scheduled for June 2015.
